Critical Conversations

UROC's Critical Conversations is a series of public discussions about urban issues and ideas. It brings together scholars, activists, historians, artists, and community leaders as a "gathering place" for urban-focused research, dialogue, and cultural events.

More information here.

Generation Next – UROC Faculty Fellows

The goal of this project is to close the achievement gap in North Minneapolis by bringing together community members and researchers to address the social, economic, and cultural issues that create this gap. That information is used to craft steps to close the gap.

More information here.

Northside Job Creation Team

The Northside Job Creation Team set a goal of attracting 1,000 jobs to North Minneapolis by 2019. The team uses research to identify businesses that match the employee profile of North Minneapolis and develops partnerships to encourage businesses to relocate or expand here.

More information here.

Sex Trafficking and Community Well-Being Initiative

UROC's ongoing Sex Trafficking and Community Well-Being Initiative examines sex trading, prostitution, and sex trafficking with a focus on the problem at large and how North Minneapolis and other urban communities can take steps to eliminate it.

More information here.

Trauma Recovery Project

Minneapolis' Northside community is disproportionately impacted by historical and structural trauma that manifests in high crime rates, alcoholism, drug use, out-of-home child placement, and lost human potential. Through community meetings, discussions, and work groups, members of the project's six workgroups examined individual and community trauma.
